Comparative History: Comparative Ethnicity and Nationalism

Graduate students interested in exploring comparative historical approaches have the option of mastering literature in one of four sub-fields: "Historiography," "Comparative Ethnicity and Nationalism," "Comparative Gender," and "Comparative Colonialisms." Each of these fields allows graduate students to situate their own focused research in broadly conceived historiographies.

Comparative Ethnicity and Nationalism

This field prepares graduate students to analyze the historical formation of ethnic and national identities across time and space. Students will explore the ways in which race, ethnicity, and nation are shaped in conversation with gendered, class-based, political, and regional senses of self. Those focusing on this field will be expected to study relevant theoretical literatures emanating from various sub-fields of History. In addition, they may choose to concentrate on particular case studies related to their areas of interest.

Associated Faculty

Madeleine Yue Dong
Professor, Joint Appointment: Jackson School of International Studies

Susan A. Glenn
Professor, Samuel and Althea Stroum Chair in Jewish Studies

Liora Halperin
Associate Professor, Joint Appointment: Jackson School of International Studies, Rebecca and Jack Benaroya Chair in Israel Studies

Moon-Ho Jung
Professor, Dio Richardson Endowed Professor
Vicente L. Rafael
Giovanni and Amne Costigan Endowed Professorship

Adam Warren
Associate Professor

Department of History
University of Washington
318 Smith Box 353560
Seattle, WA 98195-3560

Phone: (206) 543-5790
Fax: (206) 543-9451
histmain@uw.edu

Source URL: https://history.washington.edu/divisions/comparative-history-comparative-ethnicity-and-nationalism