History Fellows Program

The application for 2019-2020 History Fellows Program is now open. Applications are due Friday, September 13, 2019. Please click here for the application form and note that you will need a UW NetID to access the form via Google Suite.
The History Fellows Program application requires a current unofficial transcript, your most recent résumé, and a short personal statement. Please read below for more details.

The History Fellows Program is a professionalization and internship program for undergraduate students interested in non-academic careers. In close collaboration with the University of Washington's Career & Internship Center, the program offers career workshops that teach how to write strong résumés, enhance interview skills, and build networks through personal meetings and social media. The program helps fellows find internships in local businesses and organizations, exposing students to the dynamics and demands of fields that interest them. Fellows will emerge more confident in themselves and more prepared for the challenges that await them in their career endeavors.

The History Fellows program boosts the employability and marketability of history majors by enabling them to use the qualities and skills they have developed through studying history and apply these talents in professional settings. The History Fellows program and the Department of History are actively laying the groundwork for successful and fulfilling careers for all of their students.

Program Requirements

Now entering its sixth year, the program runs for three quarters, during fall, winter and spring. Students will register for HSTRY 495B (CR/NC) for two credits in autumn and winter, with credit optional in spring. During the course of the program, History Fellows will complete the following:

Fall Quarter

- Participate in Department of History and Career & Internship Center seminars and workshops (topics include writing effective résumés and cover letters and strategies for successful interviewing).
- Build dependable strengths and good experiences inventory.

Winter Quarter

- Explore professional networking and job/internship opportunities.
- Hear from alumni regarding career trajectories.
- Conduct informational interviews.
Spring Quarter

- Intern with a UW History alumnus, Seattle-based firm, or organization.
- Write a short essay at the completion of the program, reflecting on professional growth, skills learned, networks developed, and critical experiences.

Applicant Criteria

- Open to all History majors and class levels at the University of Washington, Seattle. Priority will be given to junior and senior students.
- Applicants must be dedicated, motivated, creative, and culturally aware.

How to Apply

Applications consist of:

- A three hundred word personal statement explaining what has drawn you to History as a field and as a major, and what skills you have learned as a student of History that you expect to help you in your career
- An up-to-date unofficial transcript
- Your most recent résumé or CV
