Raising their Voices: Seen Through the Eyes of Charity Urbanski, Senior Lecturer in History, the Women of Medieval Europe Have a Lot to Teach Today's Students

Submitted by Alexandra Colley Dusablon on March 25, 2019 - 10:52am

In her course History 340: Medieval Women, Urbanski dives into what life was like for women in the Middle Ages, including how gender stereotypes developed and how early feminist thought emerged in response.

Read more at University of Washington ⇒

People Involved: Charity Urbanski

News Category: Courses, Faculty and Staff, In the Press

Related Fields: Feminism and Feminist Theory, Gender, History, Medieval